章节摘录

版权页：插图：1. Speak in clear, quiet tones. This is the very basic ability.2. Be calm and confident. Students won't like a teacher who makes a fuss over everything.3. Be aware of the abilities and needs of each student. Kids are more sensitive than you can imagine. They ask for attention and they cherish help.4. Be familiar with children's developmental history. Only by knowing how a child becomes his/her present self can a teacher really understand the behaviors and needs of the child.5. Keep close contact with parents. Pre-school education can hardly succeed without involving parents. You need parents to cooperate with you to finish some school activities, and moreover, parents will look for you even if you do not look for them.6. Use simple guidance. This is particularly important when you instruct how to play games.7. Be positive rather than negative. Although we have reasons to be negative once in a while, we need to act and speak positively in front of the students.8. Be friendly, sympathetic, and humble. Befriend students and you will sooner or later congratulate yourself on this decision.
