内容概要

Acupuncture and moxibustion are an important component part of Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM), their effectiveness in preventing and curing diseases and improving people's health has aroused increasing interest among people all over the world. This book has been compiled on the basis of basic TCM principles and clinical observations at the same time referring to traditional modes of Chinese acupuncture and moxibustion tests and relevant teaching materials currently in use at home and abroad. Containing multiple-choice and traditional questions together with their answers, the book is useful as a source of ready-made questions for use by examiners, a source of ideas for them in the construction of new questions, an aid to students planning to take tests of the subject, and a means by which to assess one's own progress in the acquiring of TCM knowledge. Training courses for TCM and Chinese Acupuncture at the hospital where the author has been working for over 20 years. Rated among the country's best TCM hospitals and model hospitals since 1994. Guang'anmen Hospital, in Beijing, China, the official TCM hospital for 2008 Olympic Games, the only Bupa-recognized TCM service provider of excellence and one of the WHO collaborative centers for traditional medicine. A general hospital of integrative medicine with 650 inpatient beds and over 7,500 daily outpatient visits. A variety of TCM treatment methods have been fully integrated with modern medicine in each of its 26 clinical departments for over 50 years. Focusing on clinical teaching, the International Training Center of Guang'anmen Hospital has been dedicated to short-term courses with a flexible course length such as Continuing Medical Education (CME) programs for medical doctors, skills training for TCM practitioners, Continuing Nursing Education (CNE) programs for nurses, overseas electives for medical students and Introductory Courses for health officials.
