章节摘录

As the chart above indicates, most students prefer to follow their hearts to start their romantic love stories. Instead, practical factors, such as family background and age, which are usually considered to be essential when choosing a husband or a wife, become less important. The following discussion focuses on the students who have benign love, either their love is still going on or has fallen apart. Among these 61 students, 21 are boys and 40 are girls. When asked about the most frequent way they use to maintain their love with their boyfriends or girlfriends, as many as 54.1% of the students choose dates, another 34.4% say that they make phone calls, and 8.1% say that they write letters or send e-mails. From this, we can see that through modern telecommunication has played an effective role in shortening the distance between people, date as a way to maintain love is still not replaceable.
