章节摘录

Three things are necessary for us to keep a-live .They are air, water and food. We eat food two or three times every day. We breathe air continually day and night. If a man does not eat any food, he can live for about three weeks if he is stopped from drinking, he can keep alive for about three days, but if he doesn't breathe, he can keep a-live for only about three minutes. So we see that breathing is more important than drinking, and drinking is more important than eating.
