Since the first cup brewed almost 5,000 years ago, green teas popularity has increased to the point that it is presently the second most popular beverage in the world. As the name suggests, the tea is green in color. At first glance, all brewed tea appear the same, but a connoisseur is able to identify the different varieties of green tea through the appearance and color of the dried tea--the flat Long Jing tea; the snail shell-like outwardly curling Bi Luo Chun tea and the bamboo-green Zhu Ye Qing, all tell their own stories.
