章节摘录

B Bill Melendez, 91, an Emmy Award-winning animator (动画片制作者) who transformed the two-dimensional drawings of the Peanuts comic strip into some of the most beloved cartoon characters on television and film, died Sept 2 at St. John's Health Center in Santa Monica, Calif. The cause of death was not reported. Mr. Melendez, who began his career at the Hollywood animation studios of Walt Disney and Warner Bros, found his greatest fame as the animator of A Charlie Brown Christmas. The Great Pumpkin and dozens of other Peanuts Presentations. With producer Lee Mendelson, Mr. Melendez formed a 43-year partnership that has generated more than 70 Peanuts productions, including four feature films. He also animated more than 370 commercials using Peanuts characters and remains the only animator Charles M. Schulz trusted to bring his famous comic strip figures to life. Success was hardly assured when the first Peanuts special, a Charlie Brown Christmas, was broadcast by CBS in 1965. Network executives feared it would be a colossal flop. With no laugh track, a jazz musical score by pianist Vince Guaraldi and religious message. Much to everyone's surprise, the show was a huge hit and got Emmy and Peabody awards. Cartoonist Robert Smigel called it "the greatest half-hour American TV has ever produced". In addition to animating every Peanuts film and TV special, Mr. Melendez provided the wordless voice of Snoopy. Before his work on Peanuts, Mr. Melendez drew many of the famous Disney and Warner Bros animated figures of the 1930s and 40s, including Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Bugs Bunny and Porky Pig. The Peanuts characters, with their complicated personalities contained in round, childlike figure, proved unexpectedly challenging. Mr. Melendez won five Emmy Awards for his work on Peanuts. He also won Emmys for creating the first animated cartoons of Jim Davis' Garfield and for animating CS Lewis' The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe. Melendez was born in 1916 in Hermosillo, Mexico and moved to Douglas, Arizona in 1928, and later to Los Angeles. He began drawing as a child. He studied at what is now the California Institute of the Arts and joined the Disney studio in 1938.

60. Who drew the famous "Peanuts" comic strip figures? A. Bill Melendez.
B. Lee Mendelson. C. Robert Smigel. D. Charles M. Schulz.
61. What does the underlined phrase "a colossal flop" mean? A. An immediate success.
B. A great failure. C. A huge hit. D. Of great popularity.
62. Why did the "Peanuts" characters prove extremely difficult to Mr. Melendez? A. Because the characters had complicated personalities. B. Because the Warner Bros did not like childlike figures in their animations. C. Because the famous animated figures drew by Mr. Melendez in the 30s and 40s were already too successful. D. Because the complicated personalities of the characters were contained in childlike figures.
63. Which of the following statements is NOT true? A. Bill Melendez won five Emmy Awards all together.
