章节摘录

版权页：插图： When Confucius was young , he also experienced this problem . According to his class by birth , he was eligible to study in primary and junior high schools . But once he was 15 years old , he wasn't entitled to go on to study at a senior high school or university . In his lifetime , Confucius accepted more than 3000 students from over a dozen of states . Some of them came from aristocratic families and some from ordinary families . There were merchants and farmers ; there were those who were very talented and those who were reckless and dull . One of his students was Zilu who was reckless , competitive , wild and stubborn , but at the same time he was forthright and sincere , always keeping his word . Unlike others who danced around the subject when talking , he was straightforward and would dare to criticize anyone . However , despite his recklessness Confucius did not abandon him , but taught him wholeheartedly . Zilu accompanied Confucius all his life and became one of Confucius' favourite students .
