<<顶级室内空间与艺术>>

内容概要

Since the beginning of critical approach towards modernism architectural critics and historians are desperately trying to find the answer to the question, what will be the next 'great style'. throughout the history of architecture, formal feature's characteristic for each epoch could be classified into a set of general rules, described as architectural styles. although those styles were constantly evolving, merging, forming complex hybrids, often even occurring in parallel, and buildings representing particular style were rarely perfectly fitting in its rigid definition, knowledge of the style's characteristics was giving relatively good impression about the architecture of corresponding era.
