章节摘录

Barbara Cassin: Hi. Im Barbara Cassin, and Im with David Winston, a Cherokee medicine priest. David, thank you for agreeing to talk to us today. David Winston: Oh, youre very welcome. BC: Could you tell us a little bit about the Cherokee beliefs regarding the environment and conservation ?

DW: Yes, Id be happy to. Basically, Cherokee tradition tells us that we are part of nature and we depend on nature for our life, so we dont compete with it and were not trying to tame it. Were trying to live with it. We are as important as everything else, but certainly no more important than anything else. BC: Could you tell us a little more about that ?

DW: We believe that there are three great Laws of Nature, and those are the laws that tell us how we have to live in relationship to everything else. The First Law of Nature is that you dont take any life without a real reason. And a real reason would be for food, for medicine, for protection—those would be the reasons for taking life. But basically, life is sacred. BC: So you shouldnt kill needlessly. Would that include plants ?
