<<中国文化讲座>>

内容概要

中华文化，亦称华夏文化，博大精深，源远流长，自上古滥觞，至今已六千余年。华夏之称，言有礼仪之大，有文章之华，其精髓体现在生活之点滴，其深意渗透于语言之文字。北京语言大学作为中国唯一一所对来华留学生进行汉语和中华文化教育为主要任务的国际型大学。将文化传统与语言教学视为己任，可谓义不容辞。

《中国文化讲座（2）》是为了还中华文明之美，展华夏民族之魅，以期透过滴水观之世界。

《中国文化讲座（2）》择前六期中之九讲，涉及经典论著，园林、中医等。配文字并辅以讲者视频，供中国文化之学习者参考。

Last but not least, there are two men who read while doing chores. One is Zhu Maichen, an official in the Western Han Dynasty, who read the book hung on the end of his carrying pole. The other is Li Mi, an official in the Sui Dynasty (581-618), who in his childhood read the book hung on the horn of an ox while herding cattle for the rich. Apart from the diligent, there are also examples of late starters. Su Laoquan, also, (1009-1066), one of the "Eight Prose Masters of the Tang and Song Dynasties," did not put real efforts into study until he was twenty-seven years old. Liang Hao (963-1004), in the Northern Song Dynasty (960-1127), took the highest imperial civil service exam at the age of eighty-two, came out first and was conferred the title "Number One Scholar." These two encouraging examples show that it is never too late to learn.
