" and looked at me with sadness. The principal had around him mothers in distress because there was no room for their children, and it seemed to me that his beard was a little whiter than it was last year. I also noticed that some of the boys had grown taller and stouter. On the ground floor, where the divisions had already been made, there were children of the first and lowest grade who did not want to enter the classroom and who balked like donkeys; it was necessary to push them in; some escaped again from their benches; others, seeing their parents leave, commenced to cry, and the father or mother would return to offer consolation or take them home again, and the teachers were in despair. My little brother was to enter the class of Mistress Delcati; I was put in that of Master Perboni up on the first floor. I was also thinking of my teacher of the second class; he was so good and always laughed with us, and so small that he seemed like a companion, and I was sorry not to see him there with his bushy red hair. Our present teacher is tall with long hair and no beard, and he has a straight wrinkle across his forehead. His voice is heavy and he looks at us fixedly, as though to read our inmost thoughts; ! don't think he ever laughs. I was saying to myself: "
