章节摘录

(In the helicopter) Ma Ying-jeou (Former Taipei Mayor) : Taipei City is a mixture of old and the new. So in this city you could visit the National Palace Museum, and see the past of China. You could also go to Taipei 101 to experience the tallest building in the world. So this is a city full of surprises. Its absolutely overwhelming to be flying around the world's tallest building, with Taipei's Mayor. Hesse 611aid-back and friendly that I'm really looking forward to meeting the rest of the people in this city. Ma: People here are very friendly, friendly towards outsiders. I think this has something to do with the immigrant character of the citizens here. They, themselves, or their ancestors came from other parts of the world, or other parts of Taipei. So they try to help people. Shuan says that a major part of Taipei's character comes from its iconic night markets, and the Chinese food in this city is the best in Northeast Asia. Shuan: A lot of night markets started out, I think, being associated with a temple. You know, you have a lot of, like, hawkers in front of a temple. People would go to the temple. They're hungry when they come out. It eventually develops into this one big night market. Narrator: presume that Taipei's temples are full of pigs, chickens and fish, at praying for their lives, as there doesn't seem to be a whole lot on offer here for vegetarians.
